RESERVE BID PRICE GUIDELINES

Reserve prices are, in most cases not made public knowledge. If we publish the "reserve" we are bound to it and may not accept any amount less, (i.e.) if we offer an item and the reserve is $100,000.00 and we publish that, we cannot accept any amount less than the published reserve. However if we offer that same item and the "unpublished" reserve is still $100,000.00 and we receive competitive bids close to the reserve amount then we may confer with the owning agency and make a decision to accept an amount lower than the reserve or reject all bids. Therefore by not publishing the "reserve" the Government has the latitude to make an award at a lesser price than the internally established reserve.

Thank you for your interest in the GSAAuction program and we look forward to your continued participation.
